Engineering degree is no more considered as a professional course. It is taken as a perquisite qualification/degree for several avenues. People who are pursing engineering are not doing it with real passion, but they are taking it up because they have more career opportunities. We need to move towards learner-centric education system from the teacher-centric system. We need to create a system, which enables learning to happen.